Fire Safety Winter and Anytime

Careless or forgotten cooking and kitchen mishaps are the most frequent cause of fires. Leaving burners unattended for even a few minutes can result in a fire that engulfs the entire house.

If you have a fire of any kind, call 911 immediately. You may feel foolish about all the Fire Department coming out, but you would feel much worse if your house is burned.

Overloaded wiring is another cause: too many attachments, or frayed and damaged. Power cords are not failsafe. Never leave candles alone.

Space heaters: Keep at a safe distance from flammable objects. While they can heat a room, they will also ignite papers, curtains, clothing, if too near.

Oil furnaces should be checked every year by a reputable repairperson, as well as the chimney. Gas furnaces should be checked every two years, along with the chimney. Blocked chimneys can result in dangerous Carbon Monoxide buildup.

For a fireplace, even one used occasionally, check to be sure your chimney is clear of debris, squirrel and bird's nests.
